30,000 SEE BIG ROWING RACES

By FRANK G. MENKE,
Special Correspondent International News Service.

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 25.—The forty-ninth annual regatta between the boat crews of Harvard and Yale opened today with a victory for the Yale oarsmen. The first race, the second varsity eight, was won by the Blue oarsmen by about a quarter of a length.

The race was beautifully rowed from start to finish over the two-mile course, down stream, but in the last half mile the Yale oarsmen drew upon their reserve strength and passed ahead of the Harvard crew.

The official time was: Yale 10:40, Harvard 10:43.

More than 30,000 persons witnessed the contest.

Both shells got away nicely, with Harvard apparently leading.

The Yale crew hit up the stroke and quickly evened up matters. As the two shells approached the quarter mile it was a neck-and-neck race.

Near the half-mile both crews were still even. The oarsmen were catching the water evenly, making a beautiful race.

YALE TAKES LEAD.

Passing that half-mile and nearing the three-quarters both crews were rowing evenly with their strokes about

MOVIES OF THAW IN TRIAL

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Deputy Attorney General Cook, chief prosecutor in the Harry K. Thaw sanity hearing intends by evidence to make good his boast, made in his opening speech to the jury, to clear the name of Stanford White, whose name has been besmirched in all the Thaw legal battles.

The record of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, from the time she was thirteen years old until her mother brought her to New York will be introduced by the State in an effort to show that her accusations against White were untrue.

Cok has obtained this evidence from Harry Nesbit, Evelyn's brother.

"Never before in all this nauseating case," Cook said, "has one word been said in behalf of Stanford White. I intend to say a word in this trial.

"All the evidence we have heard about the alleged character of Thaw's victim came from the lips of Evelyn Nesbit. It has not been corroborated. I intend to show by this new evidence of the child life of Evelyn Nesbit that White was not responsible, that she told Thaw the story three years before he killed White and that he knew all about her before he married her."

Moving pictures will be one of the star features of the State's effort to prove that Thaw is a victim of incurable paranoia and as such should be returned to Matteawan.

Deputy Attorney General Cook today said he would ask permission to exhibit to the jury films made of Thaw in the jail at Coaticook, Que., where he was first confined on his arrest by the Canadian authorities after his escape from Matteawan.

The "movies" were made in the Coaticooke jail by Hal Reid. Cook said he hoped to show by them that Thaw showed symptoms at that time of irrationality.

It was said today that Justice Hendrick would sign the order naming a commission to examine President-Emeritus Eliot of Harvard as

Hingham Flyer Held Up by a Cow Convention

The 8:59 train from Hingham to Boston, with many well-to-do men aboard coming up to town from Summer homes along the South Shore, was held up today midway between Weymouth and Weymouth Heights on the New Haven road.

The place is favorable for a hold-up, even in daylight, because the land bordering the right-of-way along this stretch is thinly settled.

The first that passengers knew of trouble was when the train was suddenly stopped. The locomotive whistle sounded shrilly. The conductor hurried from the train. Passengers had a feeling that something out of the usual was taking place.

In a few minutes the train was started. The conductor came back through the cars, saying: "Anybody would think we were out West."

The train and passengers, it developed, were saved by the whistle, which scared off the track two cows, who were holding a bovine convention on the right-of-way. After several blasts of the whistle the cows became annoyed at it and adjourned.

I'll Try to Keep You Out of War, Says President

SPRINGFIELD, June 25.—President Wilson assured railroad men here today that he would keep the country out orf war if he could. The President was on his way to Cornish, N. H., where he will pay a short visit.

When the President's special train reached the station a small crowd gathered and cheered. The President acknowledged the cheers by smiling and waving his hand from the car window. When the train was switched to a siding for a few minutes the President, responding to calls came to the car window and shook hands with a number of railroad men.

"Keep us out of war, Mr. President, won't you?" one of the men said.

"I will, if I can," replied the President.

$8,000 Professorship Offered to Bryan

CHICAGO, June 25.—An offer of $8,000 a year has been made to William J. Bryan to fill the chair of political economy at the University of Indiana. H. H. Harrison, head of a teachers' bureau here, who made the offer, refused to give the name of the university. Inquiry elsewhere, however, disclosed that it was the Indiana institution.

WORDS OF POPE STIR ROME

By International News Service.

ROME, June 25.—Rome newspapers devote several columns today to comments on the interview with Pope Benedict XV., published in La Liberte of Paris. They are unanimous in declaring the official explanation given in the Osservatore Romano is unsatisfactory.

The Idea Nationale invites the Vatican to point out what statements in the interview are incorrect and continues:

The general tone of the interview shows the Pope is strongly pro-German and anti-Italian.

In the charge that the Italian government has interfered with the liberty of the Vatican, this newspaper sees the first effort of the Pope to place before a peace congress the entire Roman question.

The Giornale d'Italia asserts that the official Vatican explanation has lessened, but not destroyed, the unfavorable impression caused by the interview.

"Why did the Pope speak? What induced him to speak to a newspaper?" it asks, then proceeding to quote many unnamed prelates who still refuse to believe the interview authentic.

The Tribuna made this pointed comment:

Such publications are extremely dangerous to the Papacy and to the church.

BERLIN TO RECEDE IN NOTE

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, June 25.—Germany will modify her submarine warfare to meet the demands of the United States, provided it is given assurances that merchant ships will not attempt to sink the underwater craft which hails them.

It was learned today that this is one of the chief points in the preliminary draft of the reply to the second American note which is now being drawn up by Foreign Secretary Von Jagow.

The assurances that the Lusitania was not carrying ammunition for the allies are accepted by Germany as having been sent in good faith, and it may recede from its position that the liner was in reality a cruiser, excepting its regret for the "deplorable tragedy."

Only part of the preliminary draft has thus far been drawn up, but it is now expected that work on the final text may soon be begun.

Dr. Bernhard Dernburg will be called in to consultation by Herr von Jagow before the final draft is started. Dr. Dernburg is expected here Saturday, and will call at the foreign office on Monday.

Kaiserin Faints at Dying Man's Words

PETROGRAD, June 25.—The Novoe Vremya correspondent at Warsaw says the German Empress visited the officers' hospital at Posen recently and was carried out in a fainting condition in consequence of a reply of one of the officers to her attempts at consolation.

The officer, all four of whose limbs had been amputated while his body was covered with shrapnel wounds, lay near death. When the Empress reached the bedside and asked if he had any wishes to express, the German is reported to have said: "I wish Emperor Wilhelm and his children may suffer what I have suffered."

Dernburg Arrives Safely in Bergen

CHRISTIANIA, June 25.—The steamer Bergensfjord, which was detained for several days at Kirkwall, Scotland, with Dr. Dernburg on board, arrived at Bergen early today.

BRITISH TO CONTINUE BLOCKADE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—State Department officials refuse to comment on Lord Crowe's memorandum to Ambassador Page, dealing with the complained of detention of American cargoes bound for neutral ports.

In the opinion of experts on international law who have followed the controversy between the two governments, however, the memorandum is not of a character to afford much satisfaction.

It holds out little expectation of material relief to American commerce from the Dardanelles indicted upon it by British regulations and violation of the principles of international law as pointed out by the United States in its notes of March 30. Consequently, in effect, it is believed, will be rather to sharpen the edge of the issue between the two governments.

NEW NOTE EXPECTED.

In his note of transmittal, Ambassador Page says that the memorandum is not an answer to the principles set forth in the note of March 30 but merely an explanation of "concrete cases and the regulations under which they are dealt with."

The inference would be that the note from the British foreign office dealing with the principles discussed by the United States in the note of March 30 might be expected later.

EXPLAINS AT U. S.

As the note is construed here by authorities on international law, it contains distinct denial of certain rights for which the United States in the note of March 30 last contends. So to an extent at least it must be taken as an answer to that note.

These admitted rights of the belligerents are visit and search, and capture and condemnation of ships and cargoes, and seizure of contraband. Finally, the right to blockade enemy ports.

The British answer to the United states will be found on Page 6.

Prince Troubetskoy's Auto Hits Sweeper

NEW YORK, June 25.—Prince Paul Troubetskoy, the sculptor, accidentally drove his car into a street sweeper, Louis Freeman, at Sixth avenue and Fortieth street, knocking the man into the curb. The prince's wife helped Freeman to his feet. Freeman was slightly injured.

De Castellane Loses His Fight for Annulment

By International News Service.

ROME, June 25.—Count Boni de Castellane has lost his fight for an annulment of his marriage to Anna Gould, now the Duchess of Talleyrand. The final decision of the Rota Tribunal of the Vatican was handed down today.

This is the third decision of the Rota Tribunal. Count Boni wished the marriage annulled in order that he might marry again and also that he might secure the custody of his three sons, who were awarded to their mother when she secured a divorce in Paris in 1906.

The basis of the decision against the Count is the finding of the Tribunal that a deposition made in his behalf by Prince Del Drago was insufficient foundation for a verdict in behalf of the plaintiff. On his affidavit, Prince Del Drago asserted that Miss Gould violated the religious marriage by assertions only a few months before she was wed that she would divorce the Count if he were ever unfaithful to her.

Count Boni's fight in annul the marriage has been before the Vatican five years.

Morgan and His Bride to Live in New York

Having secured his bride and a year of business training in Boston, Junius Spencer Morgan is preparing to desert the Hub and set up a home in Manhattan. It became known today that the son of Mr. Morgan, who married Miss Louise Converse of Dedham last week, has taken the handsome apartment of Mrs. Frederick Ayer, recently completed, 125 East Thirty-sixth street, in New York city for next Winter.

It was reported when Mr. Morgan returned from his office at Broad Brothers on State street last Fall that he would remain in Boston for a year before establishing himself here. But the lease in New York showed today that the heir to the house of Morgan is following the habit of fortunate men marrying in Boston but living in New York, and will undoubtedly take his place in the Morgan banking houses.

The Morgans, who are honeymooning on the Corsair, start July 7 for Panama.

PIER PROFIT DECLARED SMALL

H. P. Converse, head of the firm of H. P. Converse & Co., which built the Commonwealth Pier, today in his first statement, made to the AMERICAN, said that the firm's profit on the entire job was in the neighborhood of four or five per cent.

He denied charges that the work was marked by waste, mismanagement and extravagance. "The State never got a better job, or more for its money," he said.

At the same time, after a conference between Governor Walsh and the part directors at the Bear House, it was announced that the contract for the new drydock will be let to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins on a contract calls for something like [illegible] Extra work is to be paid for on a basis of cost plus 7½ per cent.

soon as the opposing lawyers agree on the interrogatories and counter-interrogatories.

Thaw today declared that he had won his case and that the plan of the State in question Dr. Charles W. Eliot about Thaw's leaving Harvard was the signal of surrender.

READS JEROME'S TESTIMONY.

The day's session opened with the reading by Deputy Attorney-General Becker of the cross-examination by William Travers Jerome of Dr. White in Thaw's 1912 habeas corpus proceedings in White Plains. The last thing yesterday Attorney Smith for Thaw read to the jury the direct testimony of Dr. White, an alienist, who declared Thaw to be sane.

ELIOT DENIES HE ORDERED THAW TO LEAVE HARVARD

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard today began a search of the college records in preparation for receiving a commission from New York to take his testimony on why Harry K. Thaw left Harvard, presumably in 1902. The testimony is sought by the Attorney-General of New York for use at the trial on the question of Thaw's sanity now in progress.

Dr. Eliot said today he would have to refresh his memory as to details. He denied circumstantially, however, the intimation from Deputy Attorney-General Cook, contained in New York dispatches, that Thaw was called into the college office one noon and ordered to leave the university within three hours.

Thaw, in a New York statement today, also denies this part of the story and says that he is content to let Dr. Eliot tell the story of his life at Harvard.

Dr. Eliot said today:

"There is nothing to that part of the story. In the first place, it was not my business to expel any student. The faculty must vote on expulsions and it is their province to see that their action is carried out.

"The first is, I do not remember the details of Thaw's case in college, it was so long ago. I shall have to refresh my memory from the records.

"Of course, circumstances surrounding alcohol obtaining in Harvard College are considered strictly confidential and would not be given out unless usual procedure made it necessary.

"Detectives have been here trying to get me to make statements, but I shall say nothing unless a deposition is made to the proper authorities.

"I wish I might hear the last of the Thaw episode."

Thaw's name appears in the Harvard catalogue as follows:

Thaw, Harry Kendall, c(1896—2—)—

The steamer sank in thirty seconds and all but four men were lost. The Sverin Jarl was a vessel of 1,135 tons. It was built in 1902.

The Norwegian steamer Truma has been torpedoed by a German submarine off the Shetland Islands. Her crew was saved. The Truma, a ship of 1,187 tons, was bound for London from the Russian port of Archangel.

USE BATHTUB AT MURDER TRIAL

LONDON, June 25.—A bath tub reposed on a table while the prosecution enacted the death of Beatrice Mundy, one of the three wives of George Joseph Smith, who stands indicted on the charge of having murdered them all to obtain their property.

It is the crown's contention that Smith drowned them, the defence maintains that they died natural deaths due to some seizure.

Under cross-examination Dr. F. A. French told how, when summoned by the defendant, he had found the woman lying on her back in the bath, her face partly submerged. The water, he said, was clear, not soapy. Death had occurred only a few moments before his arrival.

The doctor admitted that a person of the woman's height would have had both head and shoulders out of the water if sitting in a normal position.

"Do you think it possible to drown a person in a bath if he or she is conscious?" asked the counsel.

"Yes, if taken by surprise," replied the doctor. He added that there were no marks of violence on the body.

At this point a Jurryman suggested that some one be put in the bath tub for a practical demonstration.

"When the bath is removed to your private quarters," remarked the judge, "you can put one of yourselves in it—select some Jurryman about the size of the woman."

GONZALES MEETS SHARP REPULSE

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—That General Pablo Gonzales and his Carranzista army sent to occupy Mexico City were repulsed by a heavy artillery fire from the Zapata defenders of the capital and forced to retreat some distance from the outskirts of the capital was the news received in Washington from reliable sources today.

General Carranza had expected the Zapatistas to withdraw without showing fight.

Dispatches to the State Department from Consul Canada at Vera Cruz announced that telegraphic communication with Mexico City still is interrupted and the cable company does not expect to restore its lines until Gonzales' army enters the city.

Charles J. O'Conner, chief of Red Cross relief work in the Central States, has been advised by Carranza to defer his attempt to reach Mexico City until it had been occupied by Constitutionalist troops.

J. E. Bates, an American, has been imprisoned at Caborea, Sonora, charged with importing Carranza munitions into that territory. Consul Simpich at Nogales reported.

Clothier Fined After Dispute Over One Dollar

An argument over one dollar for pressing trousers caused Jacobs H. Wilmot of Dorchester, self-to-do proprietor of a chain of clothing stores, to be fined $10 in Hingham court today for assault on Benjamin Jacobs, a Wayeland tailor.

On June 17 Mrs. Wilmot took two of her husband's suits to be pressed. Jacobs advertises to press suits for 50 cents. Jacobs said the suits needed cleansing, but Mrs. Wilmot notified she told him only to press them. Wilmot sent over a dollar to pay for the two suits. Jacobs sent back one. When Wilmot came over Jacobs said he wanted another dollar, or a dollar apiece for pressing and cleansing each suit.

Wilmot took his other suit away. Jacobs testified Wilmot pushed him so that he fell against a sewing machine. Wilmot told Judge Kelly he merely "brushed Jacobs one side." The judge thought Wilmot might have used more "discretion." Wilmot appealed.

NEW YORK, June 25.—A verdict of $25,000 damages was awarded today in the Queens County Supreme Court to Mrs. Elizabeth Warden Pell, widow of S. Osgood Pell, who died the Long Island Railroad for $250,000 for the death of her husband, who, with William Lambeer and a chauffeur, was killed near Long Beach on August 1, 1913, when the Pell motor car was struck by a train.

In addition Mrs. Pell's lawyer was given $1,200 for counsel fees and the railroad was assessed the costs of the case.

School Physicians Lose by Transfer

Boston's seventy-seven school physicians stand to lose three months' salary during the school vacation because the School Committee is taking over this branch of the city service from the Board of Health. The doctors have received $300 a year on a twelve-month basis. The Board of Health will stop doctor's salaries on June 30 and the School Committee will not employ physicians until September 1.

Whether the present corps of school physicians will be re-engaged by the School Committee is not yet determined.

Railroad Loses Ten-Cent Suit Against U. S.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Pennsylvania Railroad today lost its fight to collect ten cents from the United States as storage charges for two cans of oil shipped to the coast guard at Chincoteague, Va.

The case hinged on whether the coast guard was advised of the arrival of the oil in time to claim it before storage charges were assessed. Comptroller of the Treasury Downey ruled such notice was not given and the ten cents, to collect which the railroad spent many times that amount, was not a lawful charge.

Connecticut Bars Real Estate Company

HARTFORD, Ct., June 25.—State Building and Loan Commissioner John L. Dower today notified the Attorney-General of the State that he had refused to renew the license to do business in Connecticut of the American Real Estate Company of New York, which has maintained branches in this and other States, selling real estate bonded to small investors.

Commissioner Dower's reason for his action is that he considers the corporation is not in a healthy financial condition.

Girl Says She Was Kidnaped on Motorcycle

MILFORD, N. H., June 25.—Edith Davis, the fifteen-year-old daughter of John Davis of this town, is today telling the story of how she was carried away by two men on a motorcycle and kept for two days in a house on the outskirts of the village. She reappeared at her home after the whole town had been searching for her.

The child disappeared Tuesday. Early today she came home with her clothes almost torn off and with a story that two men had carried her on a motorcycle to a house, shutting her in.

She escaped, she said, and with the help of some neighbors got away from the men and ran through the fields and across the river, arriving at her home exhausted.

The child was taken to the office of a physician to determine whether she had been injured.

The police are working on the case.

A BUSINESS MAN STATES REASONS

Boston Man Who Resides at No. 3 Pearl Terrace Is Endorsing Plant Juice.

Ninety per cent. of the ill health can be traced to the stomach, since its chronic derangement is nothing but the slow setting in motion of the vital organs of the body. When the stomach fluid grows weak and unhealthy, then acid remains too long in the stomach, ferments and generates foul, poisonous gases, which produce a fullness or bloating, sometimes creating an unpleasant pressure in the neighborhood of the heart, causing fear of heart disease.

Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic, acts as a combatant and strikes directly at these troubles and the results are astonishing. That this is what Plant Juice is doing is being demonstrated every day by the numerous testimonials received from local people who have given Plant Juice a fair trial.

Mr. M. G. Staples, who resides at No. 3 Pearl Terrace, Somerville, Mass., and who has lived in this city for 42 years, is a well-known church man, and in business circles, was recently received. He stated:

"I had suffered from stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia, torpid liver and constipation for three years past. I had dizzy spells, headaches and no appetite. I was told that I had nervous indigestion. I could not eat any meats or vegetables, if I did, I suffered from gas and bloating and severe pains all over my body. I was very nervous and restless at nights, and my sleep did me no good. When I arose in the morning I was just as tired as before retiring the night before. Now, I can truthfully state to the Boston public, that I have taken three bottles of Plant Juice, and I don't have an ache or pain; I can eat any kind of food and it all agrees with me. I sleep and eat fine, and I feel that Plant Juice has cured me all right, and I am recommending it to all of my friends."

The Plant Juice may be had at the Liggett drug store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Advertisement.

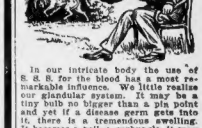
When Glands Swell Blood Needs Attention

Even a Sweat Gland May Result in Severe Consequence.



In our intricate body the use of S. S. S. for the blood has a most remarkable influence. Few little realize our glandular system. It may be a tiny bulb no bigger than a pin point and yet if a disease germ gets into it, there is a tremendous swelling. It becomes a boil, a carbuncle, it may be a "blood rising," and it is often a source of continuous misery if not checked. Many of the most excruciating forms of torture begin with the swelling of a tiny gland, caused by a disease germ. And it is S. S. S. that spreads throughout the blood circulation to prevent just such conditions. Or if they have already started, S. S. S. will soon put the blood in such a state of health as to overcome the tendency to glandular swellings. It is a vegetable medicine for the blood, just as essential to health as the blood is impure, as are the meats, fats, grains and sugars of our daily food.

It contains one ingredient the active purpose of which is to stimulate the exchange of new flesh for dead or waste matter.

MALBORGHETTO HAMMERED BY ITALIANS

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, June 25—Italian artillery is pounding away at the Austrian fortress of Malborghetto and slowly reducing the stronghold to ruins, according to the latest official reports from the front. Hensel fort, one of the key positions of the fortress, has already been destroyed.

On the lower Isonzo the Italian troops have secured a footing on the plateau between Sagrado and Monfalcone, and have begun a bombardment of Piezzo.

General Count Cadorna's latest report of military operations follows:

"On the Tyrol-Trentino front an artillery duel continues methodically.

"Our other activity along that front is confined to successful reconnoitring, with successful engagements at Zarzarno, in the direction of the Vezzena plateau.

"On the Carnic front an intense artillery fire against Malborghetto continues. Hensel fort has been demolished. During the night of June 23 the enemy made three vain attacks against Nalgrande and Val Piccolo positions.

"In the Monte Nero sector we have occupied the eastern slopes of Javorcek Mountain, taking twenty-seven prisoners. A bombardment of Piezzo has begun.

"On the Isonzo we have occupied Plava, north of Plava. On the lower Isonzo we have secured a footing on the plateau between Sagrado and Monfalcone."

RUSSIANS DRIVE TEUTONS OVER DNIESTER

PETROGRAD, June 25—A Russian victory on the Dniester River in Galicia is announced in an official statement issued here today. It says that the forces of the enemy, which crossed to the north bank of the river Wednesday morning, were driven back.

The German losses are declared to have been enormous.

The official statement says that the Germans have now been forced to assume the defensive under difficult conditions. Part of their forces are crowded up on islands in the Dniester.

The Russian forces that evacuated Lemberg have made good their retreat, repulsing attacks by the pursuing enemy.

The official report from headquarters follows:

"There were unimportant changes on the rivers Windowa, Venta and Dubissa on Wednesday, and on the Narew-Vistula front only minor advance guards actions on the Tanew front it was also calm.

"In the direction of Tolkiew and Lemberg, during the evening of the 22nd and the following day, the enemy made attempts at an offensive movement, endeavoring with persistence to advance in the direction of the villages of Cajikouff and Emitroyitze; along the railway from Lemberg to Iberjaw attempts failed, owing to our counter attack.

"On the front of Zurawnodemeszkovitzo a desperate battle is in progress, developing in our favor. Great German forces which crossed the left bank of the Dniester in the Kozary district on Wednesday morning suffered enormous losses and were driven back to the river where they were forced to assume the defensive under difficult conditions.

"Some of their troops are crowded on islands in the middle of the river, while others are clinging to the left bank.

"Near Martynovorouzlany the Austrians crossed the left of the Dniester, but were flung back over the river by a dashing counter-attack on the part of our troops. Their losses up to 10 o'clock were 49 officers and 1,700 men of the various regiments taken prisoners.

"The enemy in endeavoring to hold the ground and the houses close to the river is offering desperate resistance. In the fighting our heavy and light artillery gave effective support.

"In Kosmierjine, southeast of Nizniow, we are taking the offensive. On the 22nd we appeared before Mount Berezhanna, which was occupied and strongly fortified by the enemy. After digging in our troops on Wednesday advanced impetuously to assault the mountain. The enemy, not daring to face our bayonet attack, fell back in disorder to their second line works. Pressing close our troops entered the works, the bayoneting almost the whole garrison, holding the hill. The remnants, constating of two officers and 210 men, were made prisoners."

GERMANS ADMIT A REVERSE; WITHDRAW ACROSS DNIESTER

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, June 25 (by wireless)—German troops northwest of Halicz, Galicia, under command of General Linsingen, have met with a reverse on the Dniester River and have withdrawn to the south bank of that stream, it is admitted in today's official report from the general staff. The report also admits that the village of Kopaczyka, on the Czuniew River in Russian Poland, has also been evacuated by the Germans. The general staff's report follows:

"On the west front all attacks by the enemy were repulsed.

"In the eastern theatre German troops made local gains in several places. The village of Kopaczyska was evacuated by the Germans, but west of Stegua they conquered part of the enemy's lines.

"In the southeastern theatre the situation of Field Marshal von Mackensen's army is unchanged. Part of General Linsingen's army northwest of Halicz has been taken back under the south bank of the Dniester River. NO the upper part of the river German attacks are advancing. The left wing of the army is now near Chodorow."

Malborghetto fra le rovine. Avanzando di la' dell'Isonzo.

Questa e' la prima edizione quotidiana, in Italiano, con le' notizie piu' recenti della guerra, che pubblichiamo per far cosa utile agli Italiani che non leggono l'Inglese. Qui sarau pubblicate le piu' complete e recenti notizie della guerra, e particolarmente quelle che riguardano l'esercito e la marina d'Italia.

LONDRA, 25.—Gorizia, Lartigliere Italiano, lentamente ma sicuramente sta finendo preciso nel suo effettivo, ridurre la formidabile fortezza di Malborghetto un cumulo di rovine. Ciò secondo le ultime notizie che vengono dal fronte.

Nel basso Isonzo gli Italiani han messo piede sul piano fra Sagrado e Monfalcone ed hanno cominciato il bombardamento di Pleazo.

Roma—Telifono bollettino del comando Cadorna:

"Sul fronte Tirolo Trentino continua sempre sotto il diluvio di artiglieria.

"Lungo detto fronte, ma azione fatto una eccezione che è culminata colla vittoria di Carsano in direzione di Vezzana.

"Sulle Carniche, di nostro tiro intenso fuoco di artiglieria continua contro Malborghetto. Il forte Hensel è stato demolito. Durante la notte fra 23 giugno il nemico fece tre inutili sforzi contro le nostre posizioni di Val grande e Val Piccolo.

Sul settore di monte Nero, dal abbiamo scacciato le estremità all'est della omonimia Javorkak, facendovi 27 prigionieri. Il bombardamento di Plezzo è stato intiato.

"Sull'Isonzo, ieri abbiamo occupato Globna, a nord di Plata. Sul basso Isonzo, abbiamo preso posizione sul piano tra Sagrado e Monfalcone."

ALLA DIFESA DI TRIESTE.

ANCONA.—Triestini artisti ad Ancona asseriscono che circa 200,000 Austriaci sono trincerati per la difesa di Trieste, coadiuvati da numerose artiglierie di grosso calibro.

Essi han pur detto che un dirigibile italiano con parte su Trieste il giorno 17, e che tutti gli Italiani sono rinviati nell'interno dell'Austria.

RESPINTI COLLE GRANATE A MANO.

PARIGI 24 giugno.—Dispacci da Roma annunziano che le truppe italiane han facilmente respinto, coll'uso di granate a mano, tre disperati attacchi degli Austriaci, i quali aspirano di conquistare le perdute posizioni di Monte Piano, Val Grande, Val Piccolo, Cravaverde e Crestaverde.

Gli Austriaci han lasciato, per quei pendii, più di 300 morti.

Notizie da fonte austriaca asseriscono che a Plezzo gli Austriaci han piazzato delle artiglierie di grosso calibro, che gli italiani Vicino Gorizia e Monfalcone sono stati frustrati e che tranne un duello di artiglierie, la calma riavsi su tutto il fronte.

L'AVANZATA CONTRASTATA.

Dopo una relativamente facile avanzata durante le prime quattro settimane di guerra, gli Italiani ora incontrano una serissima resistenza. Essi debbono affrontare una serie di formidabili fortificazioni che l'Austria ha fabbricate numerose sui punti più importanti.

E l'artiglieria che ha assunto il compito di dominare i forti austriaci, e pare che quella italiana abbia una si marcata superiorità da non lasciar dubbio sulla sua vittoria, uno dopo l'altro, i forti austriaci sono smantellati e conquistati.

COMMENTI ALL'INTERVISTA DEL PAPA.

I giornali d'Italia continuano a commentare assai pramente la intervista del Papa, che non e' stata messa. L'"Osservatore Romano," organo del Vaticano, sen' e' uscito dire che c'e' differenza fra cio' che il Papa comunica al pubblico a mezzo delle encicliche e delle sue lettere, a quanto egli possa dire in una discussione privata.

GERMANS USING BURNING LIQUID

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 25.—German troops are now using asphyxiating gas and burning liquid on the Belgian front in an effort to gain the mastery over the French troops there.

The official communique issued at the War Office this afternoon stated that the Kaiser's troops gained a temporary advantage in two attacks on the Calonne trench, in which they used gas, but they were later driven back.

The Germans gained the second line of trenches, but were taken by a cross fire from the heavy French artillery.

The official communique says:

"In the region to the north of Arras we attacked during the night between Angres and Souchez and made further progress. At The Labyrinth a German counter attack was repulsed. It was followed by a violent bombardment of our trenches, to which our batteries replied.

"In Champagne, near Rheims and in the sector of Perthe, the enemy yesterday and last night exploded two mines, but made no infantry attack.

"On the heights of the Meuse, at the trench of Calonne, the Germans during the night launched against our entire front during the night an attack of great violence, accompanied by the hurling of asphyxiating bombs and burning liquid. After succeeding in penetrating into part of our second line, they were driven out by a vigorous counter attack."

Slaton to Be Protected by 2 Regiments

ATLANTA, Ga., June 25.—Two full regiments of Georgia militia will be under arms tomorrow, it was announced today, to protect out-going Governor Slaton and guard against disorder at the inauguration ceremonies of incoming Governor Harris. The officials say the Second Regiment is coming to "pay its respects" to the new Governor and that the Fifth Regiment, which is ordered out, is merely going to "receive" the second regiment. The real purpose of this display of military force is well understood.

Meanwhile Leo M. Frank is bearing up well. Since he has been relieved of the suspense his health has steadily improved. For th time being he is assigned to work around the prison at the State Prison, but as soon as he regains his strength the warden says he will be put to work in the fields.

Frank said today: "I intend to do my work cheerfully and willingly. I hope soon to be in a position to start anothir fight for freedom. I am still confident that eventually I will be free."

143,000 TURKISH LOSS ON GALLIPOLI

By International News Service.

MYTILENE, via Athens, June 25.—Fierce fighting has been in progress in Gallipoli peninsula since Tuesday, the allied troops successfully assaulting the Turkish positions. They have carried several trenches.

The second French division is now taking part in the conflict. Reports from the allies' field headquarters estimate the Turkish losses in killed, wounded and prisoners since the fighting began on the peninsula at 147,000.

A dispatch from Constantinople says that the Anglo-French troops suffered heavy losses in the assaults of June 21, and that all their attacks had been repulsed. The Turkish official report follows.

"On the Dardanelles front the enemy, supported by big guns and reinforcements recently arrived, made several attacks on the morning of June 21 against our troops intrenched south of Bedel-Bahr. All these attacks, which continued until midnight, were unsuccessful. The enemy suffered heavy losses and was driven back to his former positions. On the morning of the same day our artillery destroyed the position of a battery which was being erected by the enemy."

Who Are the 25 Most Popular Fans In New England?

25 Fans Will See All of the World's Series Games Free

Is there anything more pleasing that could be offered to a genuine baseball fan than a chance to see every game in the World's Series—especially if either one of our own Boston teams is in the battle?

Could anything be more delightful than witnessing those games when every single item of expense is taken care of by the American?

We do not think so.

All that you have to do to get in the race is to sign the nomination blank printed herewith and forward it to the World's Series Department, No. 4 Winthrop Square.

Then plan your campaign whereby you can gather a large number of votes so that you can get up among the leaders when the first vote list is published in a few weeks.

Remember, the contest has just started—it is only a week old—no one has any advantage over you.

CONVERSE DECLARES PROFITS ON PIER CONTRACT WERE NOT EXCESSIVE

dock contract, but was underbid by the Holbrook people by about $200,000.

"MYSTERY CHECK" EXPLAINED.

Another development today was a statement from State Treasurer Charles L. Burrill explaining that the so-called "mystery check" for $10,000 was a deposit filed to guarantee performance of certain work—a strictly business proposition.

Mr. Converse's statement was by way of comment on the dry dock contract and on the charges of waste and mismanagement in the work on the Commonwealth Pier. He said:

"We were bidders on the drydock work. We bid about $200,000 higher than the successful bid of the Holbrook people.

"Their bid was originally $1,800,000, or thereabouts, but since that a decision to include some further work in the contract has resulted in raising their figure to about $1,900,000.

"Their contract will call for doing extra work on a basis of cost plus 15 per cent. We did extra work on a cost plus 7½ per cent. basis. Thus if the terms of our work were bad, the terms of the new job are just twice as bad.

"LESS THAN FAIR PROFIT."

"There has been comment on the fact that our contract on the Commonwealth Pier covered only about one-third of all the work done. As a matter-of-fact the same is true of this drydock contract, for the total cost of the job will be from four to six million dollars, while the contract covers less than two million.

"One point deserves attention—whether the contract was awarded on the basis of the old test borings, made to determine the character of the necessary excavation, or of the new borings. The Supreme Court has decided the contractor may recover if the work develops unexpected conditions. If this happens here there will be a fine hikup.

"In the face of the talk of enormous profits on our part on the Commonwealth job, I can say that our total profit on the entire job was considerably less than seven per cent. It was about four or five per cent.

"That is less than a fair profit on contracting work. There is no question about it.

"The State never got a better job, or more for its money, than on the Commonwealth Pier."

REQUEST COPY OF REPORT.

The Converse firm today sent the Port Directors the following letter:

Directors of the Port of Boston,
Boston, Mass., Edward F. McSweeney, Chairman:

Gentlemen—In view of the publicity given in the newspapers to the report of Guy C. Emerson, engineer, upon our claim for $194,691.55, which was filed January 22, 1915, arising from work done in pursuance of a contract entered into between H. P. Converse & Co. and the Directors of the Port of Boston, dated December 3, 1912, for the construction and equipment of Commonwealth Pier No. 5, we beg to say that though the report was filed with your board or its chairman in April, 1915, we have not yet been favored with a copy of the same and hereby request that a copy be transmitted to us at once.

Yours very respectfully,
H. P. CONVERSE & CO.

The Converse firm also furnished copies of a receipt from the Port Directors for the $10,000 "Mystery Check," signed by Edward F. McSweeney, Joseph A. Conry and Lombard Williams of the present board, and a receipt from the office of the State Treasurer for the amount. The check was a certificate of deposit for $10,000 as collateral on the bond of the Converse company to secure the completion of their contract for building wooden bulkheads on the Commonwealth Flats. The check is to be returned to the firm upon the completion of the work.

STATEMENT BY CHAIRMAN.

The conference between the Governor and the Port Directors today was followed by the issuance of the following statement from Chairman McSweeney:

"The purpose of our conference was to consider the awarding o fthe drydock contract to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins. We have decided to award that contract to the firm and Governor Walsh approves our decision. We will later issue a statement explaining our decision.

"The matter of the Commonwealth Pier we went into only vaguely, and there is nothing new in the situation. You may say, however, that the present Board of Port Directors will continue its investigation of the matter, and I expect the Attorney-General, as he has said, will continue with his."

Labor men have protested against the awarding of this contract. They claim that since the original bids were asked the prices of materials have so decreased that the state could save from $150,000 to $200,000 by readvertising for bids. They also say the rate of 15 per cent. profit is too large.

Arthur M. Huddel, secretary and treasurer of the Building Trades Council, said today that there is "stealing" somewhere in the transaction.

TRADES COUNCIL CONFERS.

The situation was discussed at a meeting of the Building Trades Council today. Members have been in close touch with the work on the pier and have been called in by both the old and the new board to tell what they know as to the methods and materials employed.

SEE BANCROFT"

The Commonwealth Pier charges were made by the present dock board in its report to the Governor and based on the specific investigation by Guy Emerson, engineer of the board. The present dock commission charges that over $4,000,000 was paid out for the construction of the pier on which the original estimate was but $2,000,000. Carelessness, padded payrolls, lack of system and wastefulness were charged.

Members of the old Port Board, implicated in the commonwealth Pier charges, declined to discuss the specific items in the engineer's report which furnished the basis for the investigation by the attorney-general's office.

Joseph A. Conry, a member of the old board, declared that statement should properly come from Hugh Bancroft, chairman of the old board and according to Mr. Conry, the only member of the board who attended most of the hikes to the work.

BUILDING FIRED TO COVER UP ROBBERY

Police and fire officials are today investigating a fire in the Newton Lithoh. No. 681 Tremont street, that they believe was set to hide robbery.

Six persons were rescued and a dozen others were driven to the street during the blaze which occurred early today.

Shortly after the fire was put out, John Tirrell, the proprietor of the restaurant, reported to the police that his cigar case had been rifled, a gum slot machine stolen and the telephone ripped from the wall. The telephone was found later in the rear of the building by members of the protective department. The money box had been pried open and the contents were stolen.

The fire was discovered by four men, John Mooney, Thomas Archellis, John Murray and John Kane. Kane hurried to the nearest fire alarm box, while his companions broke through the door of the lodging house of Mrs. Alice Goff at No. 679 Tremont street, which is over the restaurant.

Mooney and Murray rushed up through the smoke-filled hallways to the third floor, where they found John Day on the floor, partially overcome by smoke. In a bed in the same room was Mrs. Day in a similar condition. Both were carried to the street, where they were cared for by friends.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Snowden and their five-months-old baby and Mrs. Alice Goldstein were also asleep on the third floor. Archellis, who discovered their plight, assisted them through the smoke-filled hallways to the street.

Shroeder and Libby.

Moseley Chauffeur Discharged by Court

NEWBURYPORT, June 25.—On the recommendation of Assistant District Attorney Shannahan of Essex County, Judge Simpson today discharged John O. Newhall, of Melrose, who was charged with manslaughter. Newhall is a chauffeur employed by F. S. Moseley, a Boston banker, and on June 15 struck and killed Joshua Hale, who was crossing the street in front of the Boston & Maine station. Assistant District Attorney Shannahan told the judge he had found the defendant was in no way criminally negligent.

Found Dead Near Brookfield Lake

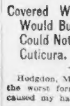
BROOKFIELD, June 25.—The body of an unidentified man was found here today in a lonely spot near Lake Lashaway. He had died from a fractured skull. The police believe he fell on a sharp rock. There was nothing in his pockets to identify the man, who was about thirty-five years of age, of dark complexion, smooth faced and dressed in a dark mixed suit, white stockings and a white Panama hat with a green band.

Clairvoyant Guilty of Illegal Practice

Mrs. Florence A. Corey, a clairvoyant, of No. 67 Brookside avenue, Newtonville, was found guilty by a jury before Judge Fish in the Superior Court at East Cambridge today on two counts of illegally practicing medicine and two counts of illegal sale of liquor. She will be sentenced on Monday.

SALT RHEUM ON HANDS AND ARMS

Covered With Watery Pimples, Would Burn, Itch and Smart So Could Not Do Housework. Used Cuticura. Completely Healed.



Hodgdon, Maine.—"I had salt rheum in the worst form for over two years. It caused my hands and arms to swell and feel numb. They were all covered with watery blisters and would burn, itch and smart so I could not do my housework. My hands and arms looked as if they were poisoned. Oh! How they burned and itched. I also had itching scalp and could not sleep at night.

"Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed my hands with the soap, dried them and then applied the Ointment. The first time I put them on it was cooling to my burning hands, and healed the watery blisters. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment a few weeks, I could see a great difference and now, to-day, my hands are soft and smooth, and the itching is all gone. They are completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. N. Oliver, Aug. 28, 1914.

SUMMER PRODUCE ARRIVES AT LAST

Summer luxuries are at last commencing to put in an appearance in the Boston markets. For instance, the first consignment of genuine southern watermelons has arrived. They are bringing today fifty cents a piece. Southern blackberries, gooseberries and raspberries are fifteen cents a box, and there is a limited supply of peaches at sixty and forty cents a basket.

There are also muskmelons as low as ten cents each and a few cherries at twenty-five cents a pound.

Flour is lower. On account of the approaching crop, which threatens to be a bumper harvest, flour today went off twenty-five cents a barrel.

Fresh eggs are bringing 30 to 33 cents a dozen. Garden truck is plenty and cheap. String and wax beans are 7 cents a quarts, spinach 8 cents a peck, and beets 5 cents a bunch.

Lamb is the only one of the meats that is cheaper. It is off about 4 cents a pound over last week's figures. Everything else is firm, and it is rumored there is a big rise in beef scheduled for next week.

Against this, however, is the price of fish. Cod and haddock are eight cents a pound, tinker mackerel are four for a quarter, and crabs are four cents each. Chicken halibut is 25 cents a pound, sea 25, bluefish 25, scrod 25, trout 75, sword 20, bonita 25, scup 15, perch 15, flounders eight cents each, butterfish 15 a pound, tautog 15, salmon 25 and 30, Jack shad 12 1-2, Jumbo mackeral are 50 cents apiece, Spanish mackeral are 32 a pound, and little neck clams are 75 a basket.

Millions of Britons Available for Army

LONDON, June 26.—The Times' military correspondent, welcoming the government's decision to seek the power to make a national registration, points out that as the total male population between the ages of eighteen and forty is about 5,000,000, there are still some 3,000,000 unaccounted for, of whom there are certainly between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 available for military service.

MAN SHOULD BE BEST AT FORTY, SAYS WILLARD

By JESS WILLARD.
Copyright, 1915, by A. Wereitt. All Rights Reserved.

"A MAN should be in the best physical condition of his life at forty," he says.

To hear people talk, you'd think I won the championship from an old man with long gray whiskers.

Yet Jack Johnson was not more than thirty-eight when he stepped into the ring with me in Havana.

Fitzsimmons is looked on as a miracle man because he fought up to the time that he was forty-five years old.

The newspapers print columns of stuff about Mathewson and Hans Wagner and Larry Lajoie, calling them "grand old men." The pitcher isn't thirty-five, and the other two are just past forty.

It would be funny if it didn't do so much harm. Boys who read this sort of bunk get the idea that they can only be athletes up to the time they are thirty. Men who reach thirty-five think the only thing for them to do is to bring out the carpet slippers and let the fat come on.

As a consequence, we are losing the very best years of men's lives. They are being cheated out of ten or fifteen years that are the finest of them all. I want to say to every boy, and to every man, that forty is the age when he ought to be at his best as an athlete.

Fitzsimmons and Wagner, Lajoie and Mathewson, are not any different from the rest of us except in one way. They've got sense. Sense enough to take care of their bodies. Sense enough to let whiskey and tobacco alone.

When you read that a fighter is played out at thirty-five, and can't stand the pace any more, don't think that it's the man who is played out. It's his stomach that's had the lining taken off by whiskey. It's his heart that's had to work overtime trying to throw off poison. It's his lungs, clogged up and ruined by nicotine.

Every now and then a man is killed in the prize ring. The papers make an awful howl, and want boxing stopped. No man was ever killed in the prize ring unless he had been in the whiskey ring before. Remember that! Instead of putting an end to boxing, which teaches the care of the body, why don't they stop whiskey selling, which ruins the body?

In reading up on ring history, I find that the best and bravest fighting was done by men past thirty-five. Almost all of the old champions of England were men who would be called "old" now.

"Youth will be served." So it will. People make the mistake in thinking that forty isn't youth. It's the whiskey that's old at forty, not the man.

I say that because I mean it. The bones are harder, the muscles should be at their strongest, and heart and lungs at their best. On top of this put experience.

As I figure it, the difference between a wise man and a fool is that the wise man gets a lesson from every knock. In the ring, as in every other business, you learn more the longer you go.

Bob Fitzsimmons was twenty years old before he entered the ring. He was thirty when he whipped Dempsey for the middleweight championship, and thirty-five when he put Corbett out at Carson City. Fitz was forty-one when he won from George Gardner in twenty-five hard rounds, and forty-five when he lost to Jack Johnson.

The thing that lost the championship to Fitz was not his own age, but Jeffries' age. Don't forget that Bob fought at 185 pounds or thereabouts. The thing that beat him his last fights was his hands. He had smashed them up until they couldn't deal an egg.

The reason you heard of Fitzsimmons in the ring for so long at a time was that you never heard of him in saloons. He didn't drink and he didn't smoke.

John L. Sullivan was thirty-four years old when he lost to Jim Corbett. For fourteen years he had been roystering, going on a big spree after every fight. Even with such a life behind him, John L. went twenty-two rounds at top speed. But for his drinking, he would have stayed champion for another ten years. There isn't any doubt of it.

Jack Broughton, the father of English prize fighting, and one of the greatest men that ever stepped into a ring, was thirty-seven years old when he won the title. He held it ten years by good, hard, bare-knuckle fighting, and he was forty-seven when Slack whipped him in 1750.

At that it was a lucky blow. Slack fetched him a clip between the eyes, and they swelled shut on the old champion. Not until he was blind could Slack bring him down.

Tom Johnson was forty-one years old when he lost the title to Ben Bryan in 1791. The fight was a terror, and up to the knockout it looked like anybody's battle.

Jem Belcher was thirty-five years old when he went down before Tom Cribb, who proved his master in both in strength and cleverness. Cribb met the best men in England as fast as they could come up, and when he retired with a fortune he was forty-years old.

"I want to give somebody else a chance," he grinned.

At forty years of age Jem Mace also decided to let other men have a whack at the championship. He celebrated his retirement by walloping the life out of a youngster who thought he could whip the "old un."

As for Joe Goss, the sport writers would call him "foxy grandpa" if he was alive today. He didn't win the title until he was thirty-eight, and he was forty-two when he lost it to Paddy Ryan in 1880. I'm going to tell about that battle tomorrow, just to show what an "old man" can do.

In the stories about these old timers you'll always find this line: "He didn't drink or smoke." That's why they were better at forty than they were at twenty.

Jack Johnson is another example. He was thirty-one years old when he beat Tommy Burns in Australia, and just reaching the prime of his strength and endurance. He began to drink and bat around after he got hold of fame and money, but even at it all, he was as strong as a bull at thirty-eight.

No "old" man could have gone twenty-six rounds with a giant like me. Not on your life. It wasn't age that told on Johnson as our fight went on, but booze. Like Sullivan, he could have gone on fighting for five more years at least if he'd lived right.

Peter Jackson was thirty-seven years old when Jeffries whipped him in San Francisco. It was the first time that the Black had taken the count in fifteen years. Like Johnson, Peter couldn't stand prosperity. Towards the last he drank heavily, and whatever killed the fine ring with Jeff, for whisky heart couldn't stand a blow.

When Jim Corbett faced Jeffries for the second time, he was thirty-seven years old. As in the case of Fitzsimmons, the boilermaker was too big for him. Corbett fought better than he ever did, but he was up against a man who, I don't suppose the ring will ever see a man muscled like Jim Jeffries.

Joe Gans was never a champion, but Dixie was never a time when he didn't make the champions hustle to hold their jobs. He was thirty-nine years old when he forced Tom Sharkey, and although he'd been hitting it up for years, he made a fine showing against the tough sailor.

Peter Maher was another who fought up to his forties' athletes, and I don't think anyone will say that he was a cowering old man.

Jake Kilrane was past 50 when he fought Sullivan. He could and stayed in the ring until 60.

I think these figures ought to do away with the idea that 40 is used to be old for an athlete, or that boy a poor prize man at 40. Except in the case of strong drinkers and high livers, few of them have worn out or put by some terrible strain long after what fools call the prime.

It must also be remembered that athletes make more demands on their bodies than other men. Whether it's a runner or a ball player or a fighter, they have got to train, and they take part in contests that burn up a lot of energy. The man who is right can keep in the shape of his life at 40. All that he has got to do is to take care of himself. Eat good food, get plenty of sleep and keep away from whiskey and tobacco.

Money can't buy health. And any exercise that you can indulge in for health, in order to get money. Then they begin to whine about what they would give if they could only get their health back.

The human body is a wonderful machine. The brain of man hasn't invented anything that can compare to it yet. Yet a fool who won't let a spark get on his automobile will treat his body with poison and try to get rusty from lack of exercise.

(Tomorrow Willard will tell of the famous fight between Joe Goss and Paddy Ryan.)

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

WHEN they reached the street Gunsdorf asked:

"What are you going to do, Mr. Barclay, if it's manners to ask?"

"I was going to ask your advice," said Tommy. "My wish is to start life as a day laborer."

"Sure? Then you'd better come out to Pennsylvania with us."

"But I want to earn a living. I ought not to begin my career as a laborer by striking for higher wages, ought I?"

"We can find something better than stone breaking for a man of your education," said Gunsdorf, "if you're on our side."

"I am on your side," said Tommy; "that is one of the reasons why I have been disinherited."

As he spoke Mary Blackstone drove up in an open car and called to him. Tommy sprang forward with courteous alacrity. And Gunsdorf murmured, "The dickens he's been disinherited!"

Mary leaned from the car and spoke in a low, thrilling voice, only audible to Tommy:

"Tommy, dear," she said, "I'm so wretched. We've made such a mess of things! Can't we begin all over again?"

Tommy answered with great gentleness: "We can't begin all over again," he said; "things can never be as they were. But we can be friends, Mary."

She shook her head and the corners of her mouth turned bitterly down.

"You and I, Tommy," she said, "might be almost anything in the world to each other—but friends? Never. You may drive on, Rugby."

Tommy held out his hand, but she turned from it, as if in scorn, and the motor slipped quietly forward.

"H'm!" murmured Gunsdorf; "he has been disinherited. And he's just told her. And she's given him the mitten."

Well, many a leader of capital would have come no nearer the truth. For to the casual eye Tommy instead of Mary had been the pleader and the rejected.

* * * * *

In the mining town of Bitumen in Western Pennsylvania there was for the moment an armed truce between the strike-breakers and the strikers.

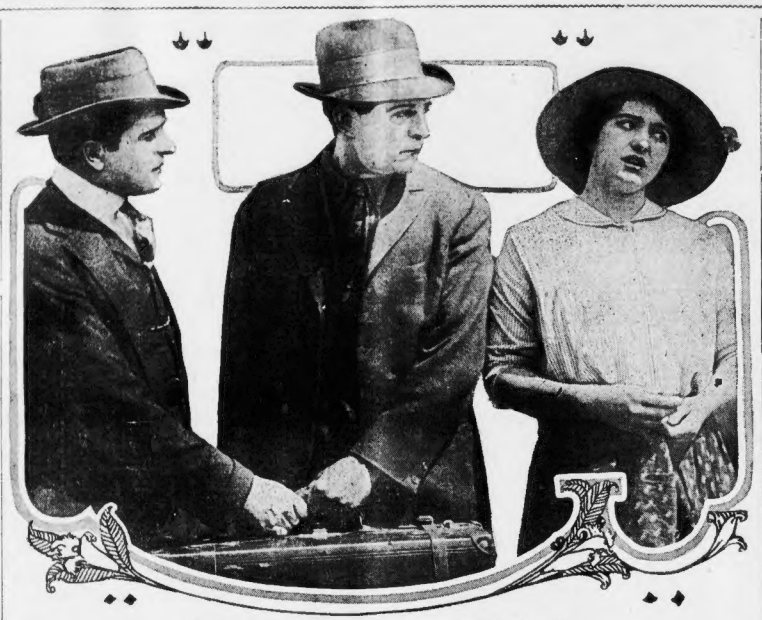
The latter, under the leadership of Gunsdorf, held the village; the former, under the personal supervision of Kehr, had built a strong palisade which commanded the railroad station and the approaches to the town by rail. Both belligerents maintained a system of sentries, and a genuine state of war existed. More than one striker had been given a public funeral, more than one strike-breaker had departed from Bitumen in a barrow box.

So much was clear. Less clear were the causes which had led to actual violence. It is enough that they led to a demand for larger wages and shorter hours, which Kehr, representing the owners, and intrenching himself behind the statement that too many such demands had been acceded to in the past, had peremptorily, and in a manner not tended to conciliate, refused.

A general strike had been called, strike-breakers and special deputies had been called in, and there had been dynamiting and sudden death.

On their arrival at Bitumen Gunsdorf had taken Tommy to his home and introduced him to his wife and also to other miners.

The leaders were somewhat alike. Each had a supreme contempt and even hatred for the class which the other represented. Each was a strong-willed, stubborn man, having much power over other men. Neither was altruistic. At the back of Gunsdorf's head lurked the idea that one day he, too, might be a capitalist who should employ labor. Kehr had every intention of one day employing more labor himself. Neither truly represented the cause for which he stood. Both were prepared to sacrifice any number of other people's lives for the betterment of their own.



Tommy arrives at Bitumen and meets Gunsdorf's wife

There was, however, this difference between them: Men obeyed Gunsdorf because they believed him to be a strong man of the people, with the interests of the people at heart; men obeyed Kehr because they had to.

So Tommy felt about Gunsdorf when he heard the thick-set, trembling, passionate assailant of privilege hold forth in the Town Hall, when he saw tears gush out of the man's eyes as he told of women and children who were going under because there was no longer any bread in the house, and when he pretended that he could hear their cries and clapped his hands to his ears.

Tommy had been introduced to the "brothers" as a safe man, but when Gunsdorf began to advocate a midnight rush upon the stockade and massacre of all who might be found within, many eyes were turned upon the silk-stocking to see how he would take the suggestion.

"We will put them," thundered Gunsdorf, "where they shall never again no more hear the voices of women and children lifted in joy—or in sorrow. We will show the world what it is to prey upon the poor and the unfortunate, so that little children die of hunger. What do we claim? Only a fair share of what belongs to us. What do we get? Crumbs and offal chucked to us from the rich man's kitchen door."

Those Who Live in the Past

Beatrice Fairfax Points Out the Folly of Many People

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"THE past was goodly once, and yet, when all is said, The best of it we know is that it's done and dead . . .

Duty and work and joy—these things it cannot give,
And the present is life, and life is good to live.
Let it lie where it fell, far from the living sun,
The past, that goodly once, is gone and dead and done."
—HENLEY

FOR all who live the time is now; the day is here; and opportunity lies ahead. Why, then, grieve over things in the past that we may well wish undone, but that for all our wishing are accomplished facts?

If the man who is stricken with blindness were to sit and grieve over the fact itself instead of trying to adjust himself to new conditions and to learn to use his other senses to take the place (as far as possible) of the one he has lost, would not his life become wholly desolate?

It is only in adjusting yourself to the conditions of your present circumstances—whatever they are—that there lies any chance of your finding life worth living. Yesterday's blunders belong to yesterday along with yesterday's hopes and fears. Because those hopes and fears and blunders were part of your experience yesterday, you may be a little different today—but you have a new set of problems to face today, and you must not distract your own attention from them to worry over the way you met yesterday's situation.

Yesterday is finished. It is not a piece of knitting you can unravel to do over and do better. It is as irrevocable as Nature. You cannot stop flowers from coming if certain seeds are planted and fertilized—you cannot prevent weeds from springing up under certain conditions. But learning what produces flowers and what weeds, you can be careful about the conditions you produce.

So with your yesterdays. They produced certain things. Don't worry about them uselessly. Don't let your past be a ghost to haunt you. Instead, use it as a bit of experience on which to build a better future.

Perhaps you are ashamed of your past. But shame won't be a factor for future growth if you merely wallow in the muck of what you wish had not been. It has been. You have not your yesterday to live over and better. But your today you have now, and your tomorrow you will have soon, and there is nothing in your past to prevent your living them well.

Don't repeat your past blunders. But no more mourn for them than to them in memory. Give your attention to making your today and tomorrow so splendid that your yesterday in the great balance of life be outweighed and will not count.

A Good Opportunity

The streets were crowded with idle miners, for a strike was in progress. Then the city authorities, taking advantage of this fact, had a good amount of work done, putting in sewers, paving streets, etc.

Mulligan, who was not above earning a little extra money whenever possible, had taken over a job at digging ditches.

One morning his friend chanced to pass him as he was laboriously shovelling earth.

"Hullo, Mulligan! What are yez doing there?"

The workman leaned on his spade and made a long pause before answering.

"Oh, Oi thought Oi would work just whole Oi was aidle, boy!"

Household Hints

Fuller's earth made into a paste with ammonia is a most effective mixture for use in the household. In the case of spots of grease on rugs or carpet it forms an excellent cleanser; the paste being spread over the surface and then allowed to dry on.

* * *

When scrubbing linoleum or the kitchen boards, add a little paraffin to the water. It takes out dirt and grease, and gives linoleum a beautiful gloss without the trouble of polishing.

To separate egg yolks from the white break the eggs into a funnel over a cup. The whites pass through, the yolks remain.

The best bed for a child is one of chopped straw in a strong unbleached cover. It is healthy, springy and cheap.

To Clean a White Felt Hat—Mix magnesia to a paste with cold water. Allow to stand for a few minutes, then apply evenly to the hat with a brush. When the paste is quite dry brush off the magnesia with a clean stiff brush, and the hat should be quite clean. If very soiled two applications may be necessary.

A Foe to Tuberculosis

The Journal of the American Medical Association (August 9, 1913), reviewing an article on "The Influence of Calcium Salts on Constitution and Health," said: "They (the authors) report numbers of concrete instances in which patients gained in vitality and energy after taking calcium."

Doctors agree that in tuberculosis lowered vitality and lost energy must be overcome.

One of the constituents of Eckman's Alterative is calcium (lime), in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. To this, in part, is due its success in the treatment of tuberculosis—a service which even some ethical practitioners have acknowledged to their patients. We make no wholesale claims for it, but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, a trial is safe. Sold by all Hiker Drug Stores and leading druggists.

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.

HER ladyship never had gentlemen visitors, and had no correspondence of any importance. Her ladyship had seen Sir Godfrey about six or seven, had dined alone in her room, and had, without giving any reason, gone out about half-past eight, she—Berenger—supposed, to call on a friend.

Her ladyship was most unconventional in her habits and never made a confidante of her maid.

Mr. Paton's interview with Collier merely confirmed Berenger's information. Collier, however, somewhat enlarged upon his master's excitement when he found that her ladyship had not slept in the hotel that night, and he fully described what had transpired by telephone and telegraph.

"We shall do all that is possible, Sir Godfrey," said the little man before he left. "You can rely upon me. I shall look in and report fully as soon as possible. Pray do not allow yourself to become alarmed."

Brooks thanked him eagerly, and felt much easier at mind.

Once outside the Savoy hotel, Mr. Paton hailed a taxicab. As he drove away he remarked to himself that he would bet quite a large sum of money that Sir Godfrey Brooks knew a lot more than he dare tell; that, in fact, he was extremely upset; and it was his, Paton's determination to get to the bottom of what at the outset bade fair to become a very difficult mystery to solve.

The clock had just struck the last reverberating boom of midnight. Mr. Paton and another man greeted each other in a small, official-looking room at Scotland Yard.

"It's the queerest business I've ever had to tackle," said Mr. Paton musingly, "and I'm hanged if I like the look of it. What do you say, Booker?"

"Darned queer," laconically remarked Booker in a strong Pennsylvanian accent. "Can't cotton to it nohow. But you ain't got two straws to go on so far. What say?"

"True, but we've got to go on. And that's why I thought I'd have a chat with you."

"Yup!" said Mr. Booker, sucking hard at a long cigar and regarding the little man with a paternal expression on his countenance.

Mr. Booker was a typical American in all save his personal appearance. In that he resembled, nothing so much as a worthy Nonconformist divine. He was tall and thin and angular, and his black, loose-fitting frock-coat suit hung about him like a cassock. His low turned-down collar and black tie gave the clerical effect, which was heightened by his pince-nez and his almost sanctimonious expression.

He was one of the smartest men in the New York service, and a great personal friend of Mr. Paton's. In the past, between them, these two men had carried through several remarkable cases.

"Seems to me," drawled Mr. Booker, "you're up again one of them brick walls that nothin's swine to knock down but a few hard facts."

"Well, haven't I got some facts?" exclaimed Mr. Paton, unconsciously dropping into Mr. Booker's American accent.

"Nothing that's worth ten cents," said the Yankee. "You can't go on theories. So far as I can see you ain't got a leg to stand on. You're got nothin' against the woman, have you, now?"

"Perhaps not," admitted Mr. Paton.

HIGH HONORS FOR HEARST EXHIBIT AT EXPOSITION

When the international jury of awards at the Pan American Pacific Exposition gave to William Randolph Hearst the grand prize for his famous color press in the Palace of Machinery, it placed the highest stamp of approval on what is universally recognized to be the most complete press of this character the world has ever seen.

This important award was made under Group 20, Department of Liberal Arts, which includes typographical equipment, process and products.

The evolution of color printing has been one of the most interesting with which publishers have had to deal, and, not withstanding the rapid strides made in the past, the things which this press is able to do have astonished not only laymen but publishers as well.

Briefly, it combines the highest degree of perfection in the design and construction in newspaper printing mechanism, an elaborate system of color printing, together with the highest spee dever attained in turning out papers.

The press is known as the Pancoast universal unit press and was built under patents about to issue to George Pancoast, mechanical superintendent of all the Hearst publications.

PRINTS TWELVE COLORS.

It is the first real unit press ever built. It is a universal unit black and color press in the absolute sense of the word. It will actually print twelve colors on one side of a web of paper ; should such a product be desired.

It will print six colors on each side of one web of paper and one color on each side of six webs of paper, or any combination between the two extremes. The press is built in one solid section or in two, three or four sections plit in any ize.

Within a few econds' time the printing element of this huge press may be reversed and run in the opposite direction, which means that the run thus may be shifted from black to color almost instantly.

To the visitors to the exposition the wonderful achievement of this press has been a never-ending source of wonderment. The press is not these simply as something to look at.

It is not merely an exhibit, running as a dummy. Ever since it was installed the color, editorial and City Life sections of the San Francisco Sunday Examiner have been printed on it. This has provided actual work, and not make-believe, for the press for five days in the week.

When the exposition is closed in December it will be added to the San Francisco Examiner's already very complete equipment. It will give to the newspaper the distinction of having the only press of its kind in the world at the present time.

BUILT IN RECORD TIME.

This great mechanism was designed and built in record time. It was begun on September 3, 1914, and was finished and ready for shipment on January 5, just four months later. It was here that the press achieved another distinction, because after being packed it was shipped through the Panama Canal, and thus became the first printing press to go through that waterway.

On February 5, it arrived at the Palace of Machinery at the Panama Exposition and was installed, adjusted and ready for operation on February 12. From this one it has been doing its daily task without a halt. The weight of the press is 140 tons, its length forty-eight feet, its height twelve feet two inches and its width nine feet. It is operated by an electric motor of eighty horsepower.

Every possible precaution has been taken to insure those who work about the press against accident of any sort. All of the main gears are enclosed in metal boxes, and from top to bottom, from one side to the other, the principle of "safety first" has been put forward until it may be said that this principle has actually been built into the press.

Forty thousand copies of a forty-eight page paper can be turned out from this press every hour in the day. It will rmeain in the Palace of Machinery during the entire period of the exposition ,and all of the color sections of the San Francisco Sunday Examiner will be printed there and millions of visitors to the exposition will for the first time—that is, a great many of them—see a great newspaper being printed.

GOLD MEDAL FOR MR. HEARST.

On the same day upon which Mr. Hearst was awarded the grand prize for the color press he was presented with the gold medal for the educational color printing processes shown in the booth which adjoins the great press.

The latter award was made in Group 30, Department of Liberal Arst, which includes books and publications.

Thi remarkable display has likewise fascinated hudnred of thousands of visitors to the fair as some insist upon calling it. They have been enabled to follow step by step all of the intricate processes and the inner mechanism of the printing of magazines and books.

Perhaps the average person who read a magazine does not concern himself or herself with how it is produced. It remained a mystery because no opportunity had appeared to find out anything about the subject. After a visit to the head of the educatoinal exhibit, however, the subject becomes literally an open book.

Take, for instance, the various processes through which a photograph passes, from the exposure of the negative to the reproduction in the magazine.

Each step is shown. First the layout, that is, the preparation of the picture or the negative, as the case may be, by an artist so that all the details in the picture will "come up."

From there it passes into the hands of the engraver and each stage of his work is shown. Sample plates of every step describe exactly and in detail, the entire process right up to the printing of the photograph in the pages of the magazine.

Then, too, there are on exhibition some of the original illustrations made for stories and articles which have appeared in the Hearst publications. One may see drawings by Charles Dana Gibson, Harrison Fisher, Howard Chandler Christie, and others, who look from out the pages of Hearst publications upon millions of readers.

Truly has the exhibit been called educational ,and for that reason the award of a gold medal in this group is a high honor.

It is not too much to say that the Hearst color press and the Hearst educational exhibit have been the chief attractions in the Palace of Machinery.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Boston automobile dealers are receiving notice that in order to sell second-hand automobiles and second-hand motor accessories they must, under the law, secure a license from the police department as dealers in second-hand goods. This notice was sent out yesterday, and it seems strange that at this time, some fifteen or more years after the establishment of the motor industry, some wise man has discovered that they have heretofore been operating in other than a lawful manner.

The police department will give all dealers a reasonable time to comply with the requirements of the second-hand law and later will prosecute those who do not see fit to take the necessary steps. It is estimated that there are something like three hundred dealers in new and second-hand accessories in this city.

General Manager R. P. Henderson of the Cole Motor Company of Indianapolis was in town yesterday and held conferences with a great number of the dealers in the eastern section fo New England, who came to Boston to meet the factory representative.

ARREST STUDENTS AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, June 25.—Fourteen students at the Joint Harvard and Yale celebration at the Griswold Hotel here were arrested when they refused to permit the management to close the bar at the usual hour, and four are now lodged in jail.

The trouble began when the night watchman attempted to eject the students from the bar room. The young men insisted that the bar be kept open for their benefit, and, when the watchman tried to use force to carry out his orders, they threw him out of the room. He called forty special officers who had been held in reserve by the local police in anticipation of trouble with the students.

Bringing Up Father

By George McManus

Fighters Influence Boys for Good.

Clean, decent ring fighters have done more to influence boys for good than all the moral lectures in the world.

The reason why is interestingly told by Jess Willard in the part of his autobiography which the AMERICAN will print tomorrow.

The eighty-seven round battle in the West Virginia hills between the then champion, Joe Goss, and Paddy Ryan in 1880 was an object lesson in courage and grit to any boy. Willard describes the fight and tells why a new champion arose that day.

BRAVES-GIANTS IN 6-GAME SERIES

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Boston Braves hit Big Broadway this morning. [illegible] as a result of polishing up the Dodgers three in a row the clan of Stallings has [illegible] going to keep on its winning streak at the Giants' expense [illegible] when it hits out for [illegible] next Tuesday evening.

The Braves are to engage in six battles on the Polo Grounds this trip. The program calls for single performances today and tomorrow, with double-headers Monday and Tuesday.

New York hags look for Dardy Dougherty to start the series. [illegible] this [illegible] one of his favorite tricks [illegible] Rudolph worked on Pezold on Tuesday, and with Stallings not sure [illegible] Jones and perhaps Wiltse to [illegible] chance on the box Fellow is confident he is right in [illegible] Rudolph turn.

Jawn McGraw used Marquard, Tesreau and young Stroud against the Phillies Herrill won't be seen on the slab, but may [illegible] the New York assignment to-day. Otherwise Matheweon or some pitcher will go to the hillock.

Schlling states that he is not at all worried over what's going to happen in the championship grind. He flatly declares that the Braves have looked better this week than at any other time this Summer and figures they will travel on high the rest of the route. The Braves find the Giants in sixth position this trip, as it goes without saying that the McGrawites are out to grab as many victories as they can in the series.

M'VEY HOT AFTER WILLARD TUSSLE

By JACK CONWAY.

SAM MVEY, the California negro heavyweight who is scheduled to meet Sam Langford in a twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night, will complete training for the contest at Highland Lake. McVey is already in good condition, and George Lawrence, his manager, says that a few more days of hard work will put Sam on edge for his tussle with the "Human Submarine."

Lawrence is today looking forward to a bout with Jess Willard for his protege. When Willard won the heavyweight championship by defeating Jack Johnson, he stated that he would never again enter a ring with a negro. The men behind the big cowboy have evidently changed their plans, as Tom Jones, Willard's chief adviser, announced in New York the other day that the heavyweight champion is prepared to clash with any man in the world, regardless of what his color is.

"McVey or Langford would be able to defeat Willard," said Lawrence today. "I am confident that McVey would be able to stop the champion inside of fifteen rounds, while I believe that Langford could accomplish such a task in a ten-round bout.

"Willard is a big, powerful fellow, but he is not a second Sullivan, while he is not up to the standard set by such champions as Jeffries, Fitzsimmons and Corbett.

"WILLARD was fortunate in landing a match with Johnson. The latter was a physical wreck when he entered the ring with the Kansas cowboy. It took Willard twenty-six rounds in which to win. I believe that if either Langford or McVey had been in Willard's position at Havana, that the contest would not have gone half as long as it did.

"I had planned to match McVey with Johnson months before the Willard fight. The contest would have been staged in London a year ago if it had not been for the European war. The National Sporting Club of London had made all arrangements for staging the contest, Johnson had agreed to the terms for the tussle, but everything was called off when war was started in Europe.

"I then had McVey journey to the United States and was planning to hold the big bout in Cuba. Willard's backers, however, were fortunate in securing Johnson's services, with the result that the giant young Westerner gained the championship.

"I BELIEVE that McVey will win from Langford at the Atlas A. A. I will then be in a position to force Willard to meet my protege. If he refuses to do this, he will be obliged to admit that he is not a real champion.

"There is not a white heavyweight who possesses enough class to give Willard a hard battle. "Gunboat" Smith and Battling Levinsky are not big enough to make things interesting for Jess. Jim Coffey is a promising fighter, but he has not had enough experience to battle Willard on even terms.

"The public realizes all this. Consequently if Willard is to make money in the ring he must clash with a boxer who would have a chance of defeating him. The winner of next week's tussle at the Arena would be the logical choice for such an encounter."

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the twelfth of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

An Exercise That Will Develop Broad Shoulders.

To do the Third Exercise right requires study and careful attention. But it is a good one and worth the trouble. It is good for the outside of the body, and better yet for the inside—which, as has been often repeated, is the ultimate object of all our efforts.

Stiffen yourself as before, and bear it in mind that nothing is to move below your waistline. Keep watch on your figure in the looking glass so as to be sure of observing this injunction; if you have no looking glass, do the best you can without it. You may assist yourself by imagining that the point of the bayonet, which we employed in the last exercisee, is now all but in contact with the little pad of muscle or flesh just below the hip bone. If you let your hip sway ever so little from its vertical posture, you will get pricked, so look out!

Now extend your arms outward, on a level with the shoulders and in the plane of the chest, so as to form the figure of a cross, the right arm pointing straight to the right and the left to the left, fingers, too, outstretched, and palms turned down.

Stand with your right side toward the wall, and far enough from it to bring the tips of your right fingers in contact with it. Now move eight or nine inches away from the wall and still at right angles with it; the tips of your right fingers will then be removed from contact with the wall eight or nine inches.

The exercise consists in leaning or shoving the body, above the hips, sidewise, till the fingers again come in contact with the wall. Do not lower the arm from the horizontal at any time; do not let the shoulders depart from the horizontal; do not lean the body over toward the door—these are three ways of saying the same thing. Keep shoulders and arms on the level, and contrive to give the torso a sidewise shove toward the wall, until you reach it with your finger tips. If you are doing it right, you will be aware of a strong tendon on the muscles of the waist just above the hip bone, on the left side—the one away from the wall. Do your best to tear that muscle asunder. Deltoid, pectoral and latissimus dorsi will also be exercised by this movement; while, inside your body, your entrails will wake up and wonder what is happening. They will find out, after a month or two, that it was all for the best.

Face about, and perform with the left arm the movement just done with the right. Ten times each way will be enough.

Do not be disheartened if you find that you were unable quite to maintain the vertical rigidity of the body below the hips. Maintain it as nearly as you can. The more nearly you maintain it, the more thorough will be the stretching of the waist muscles—that is all.

As before—and always—make the movement against the best resistance you can put up to prevent your fingers from reaching the wall. You must overcome that resistance, even if you have to bring a pull on the shoulder joint that comes near to dislocating it. But make the movement steadily and slowly—no jerking!

It may take you some time to get this exercise correct; but study the directions—all of them—carefully, and you will master it at last. If you care to have broad shoulders and a lean waist, you could practice nothing that would better promote them. You will also discover a gratifying improvement in your digestive powers.

Moreover, Exercise No. 4 is the simplest of them all.

Larned Beaten in Semi-Final Round

ORANGE, N. J., June 25.—After displaying remarkable form in the earlier rounds, H. P. Larned and C. L. Johnson, Jr., stumped in the semi-finals of the Middle States championship tournament at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club at Mountain Station.

Larned's poor volleys, bad aim and slack service made it possible for W. M. Hall, a former holder of the title, to beat him, 6—4, 6—3. H. A. Throckmorton, the boy winner of the Princeton interscholastic honors, outplayed Johnston, 6—1, 6—2. Previous to that the boy beat W. L. Tate, former Cornell star, 6—4, 6—2.

WALTHOUR, WILEY AND LINART RACE

Bobbie Walthour, the "Dixie Flyer," will make his season's debut at the Arena Cycle track tomorrow night, when he meets George Wiley and Victor Linart in a twenty-five mile motor-paced race.

Walthour, whose long string of victories last year in one lump to be remembered, is said to be riding better right now than at any time since his famous "Atlanta Jack" and local followers of the game are inclined to believe that the Southern veteran will defeat Linart more than the bargain for when he takes his gear off the stands fastest tomorrow evening.

Walthour has more records and won more races than any pace follower in the game last season, and to top it all off he came within a shade of grabbing off the national motor championship.

Wiley also claimed that he won the title race, but the Judges decided otherwise. Later on in the season, Walthour and Carman, the champion, and licked him in a stand-off in one of the fastest races ever seen at the beach.

Providing that he does not back any loose motor pacers, Wiley is going to prove a mighty dangerous man to tomorrow night's big event. The diminutive Brooklyn boy is showing grand form, but his motor always seems to go bad when he is riding best. This has been the case in his last two races, both of which seemed to be his up to the time of these unfortunate happenings.

Linart, who has yet to lose a race at Revere this season, has been made a favorite over Wiley and Walthour. The Belgian's remarkable work has won him many followers, who believe that he will better Dutch's wonderful record of last season.

George Seres Beats Wiley and Linart

NEW YORK, June 25.—George Seres of France won two out of three heats in the motor-paced event at the Sheepshead Bay Velodrome, the winner racing off the third heat at five miles with George Wiley, each taking a ten-mile heat, with Victor Linart third each time. Seres made a new record for the distance in taking the first heat, his time being 13m. 17 1-5s.

Fleming Scores by K. O.

MONTREAL, June 25.—Frances Fleming, the Canadian lightweight champion, knocked out Frankie Callahan of New York in the seventh round of their scheduled bout here.

Fresh Favors for Fans

By H. W. LANIGAN

Chicago's two clubs were much stronger to win along with our two entries yesterday. Both won the suit of games they could just as well lost, and that stamps the two best in the league. The White Sox leaned the fashion in the nineteenth inning, while the Cubs were forced to tally four runs on the home plate route in order to get the limit by the shabby tally of 14 to 13. The triumphs of these two old Braves were strictly in the traditional Braves style more or less fortuitous. Both games were brackled in front and fairly bristled with errors, but the two resultant leaders deserve credit for the Cubs and White Sox for the hotchpotch.

The Red Sox are still in reach. As Richard Bill Carrigan was absent from the game with the Athletics yesterday, Walter Johnson labored in Washington neither Joe Wood nor Ernie Shore was quite ready for the fracas, the Reds had to be content with the two Dutch Leonard and Ben Dyer. Dutch's wee mite positively raved for the prospective Washington Senator's blood, but the Nationals, as Chesterfield would say, "were not at home" to the Red Sox fans so Dutch's rage at the ball park was all for naught.

This far we have compared the Red Sox have proven to be a very ruinous home club. In the first nine games at Fenway Park they belabored the West Coast aggregation to the tune of seven to two, St. Louis seems less a hard game with the Missourians, two out of three games were split and gambling on even split with Chicago. This stamps them as indulge in street pastimes with the families on Thursday, March and Gliff. They'll be busy with 'em slated to twelve playing days straight with the Athletics opening their first. It is starting to streak, barking good one week and a good big one the next. Breeze with the Yanks tugging their best to them to take a header. This is the most gold bricked ball team in the history of baseball, while Manager Carrigan's lament from his Broadway at the Hub is getting to be less dead than Marley's ten-ring circus.

It would not be a bit surprising if C. Holliday Ebbets allowed Jacob Daubert to become a Brave. Not that Jake, classy as he is, could supplant "Rooster" Schmidt. But inasmuch as Daubert appears to be C. Holliday's late receiving expert since Don Carlos "Hack" Wheeler and "Red" Smith were handed to Gaffney, J. C., via the depot, should come this way.

That was a whale of a game Master Mount Criswell of Malden, the Boston Brown University bowman, pitched for C. Mack, making his debut under the big tent. Hockey Jack with Ray Caldwell a pitcher of undefined ability, Criswell pitched a shut-out game in nine innings, only to come to grief when the Yankees batched it with a bobble in the tenth canto. Criswell's start certainly looks more impressive, and if E. Collins and Hickey were still allied with the House of Mack, the world would sometime have been relieved of a pitching problem of a helpless lover.

Wilson Lefler, upon his arrival in Boston, complained of the big way West. It is our sorrow that Lefler and Hickey more are going to kick on the Brooklyn biz starting on the 20th inst.

Try Cobb had another large day in his fistical way. He had a double and a triple, swiped three bases and scored two runs. Incidentally Cobb annexed a batted safety at least once. Hickey used Wiley pitching in a dual effort to stave off disaster in Dame Dull an easy game to twirl and his arm keeps the Tigers ahead of the Red sox.

Now if Hickey is using Howard as first. Here a former Coast League star and a kid brother of Del Howard, the former Boston player.

This drug-dog matinee between the Yankees and Macks went Donovan's way when Joe Bush opened the ninth with Fritz Maisel on third to the tune of a single. Bush was back on second for the Macks. Ira Flagstead pulled out three-base hit, scoring Maisel and Bush.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were quiet at the opening, but there was a better tone to markets than was observed yesterday. A number of issues were unchanged, but most price variations from the close last night were upward. Recent liquidation has improved the technical position and is believed to have descended to a considerable degree anything unfavorable in the pending note from Germany. There is more hope that the Gramm explanation will contain enough concessions to satisfy the government of this country. In short there was more confidence on the part of traders this morning. Within a few minutes there was further improvement in prices which affected railroads, coppers and industrials.

Negotiations for money in this country by the allied powers is not restrictive influences upon speculation. There is desire to profit who it is participate and to what extent borrowing will go. It is expected to have considerable influence upon money rates eventually. Foreign exchange rates are at the lowest levels. Gold continues to come to this country. The total of imports from January 1 to yesterday is $111,320,000. Of this amount, $5,845,000 came from Canada.

GAINS IN BOTH MARKETS.

Among early gains in New York were Amalgamated Copper 1¼, American Can ¼, American Car & Foundry 1¾, American Cotton Oil ¼, Canadian Pacific ¾, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Canada Southern ¼, Erie 1st pfd. ¼, Great Northern pfd. ¼, Illinois Central ¼, Kansas City Southern ¼, Louisville & Nashville ¼, Missouri Pacific ¼, New York Central ¼, Pennsylvania ¼, Reading 1¾, Union Pacific ¾, U. S. Steel ¾, Baldwin 1¾, Bethlehem Steel 2¾, Goodrich ¾, Maxwell 1¼, and Wabash ¼. Anaconda was off ¼, Westinghouse ¼ and U. S. Rubber 1¼.

The Boston market was dull at the start and did not develop activity during the first half hour. Among small advances are Alaska Gold ⅛, Butte & Superior 1⅛, American Zinc ⅛, Greene-Cananea ⅛, Isle Royale ⅛, Mohawk ⅛, Atlantic Gulf preferred 1½, U. S. Smelting 1 and New Haven ⅛.

COPPER METAL QUIET.

The demand for copper continues limited and it is reported that the output produced on Saturday was sold at under 20 cents a pound. Large sellers are still quoting 20½ cents as high as 20⅝ cents and expect to get that price when buying is resumed on any scale. Consumers bought so heavily in May and a little later that they filled requirements for some time. There is no material change in the lead or spelter markets, unless they have a slightly firmer tendency.

STEEL TRADE IMPROVING.

It is said that the U. S. Steel Corporation is operating at about 50 per cent. of capacity and is receiving new business at a rate that will soon put the corporation's finances on a sound basis. It is estimated that orders are arriving now at the rate of a tonnage of from 45,000 to 50,000 a day. Railroads are ordering cars and rails, as well as foreign governments. Present domestic inquiries are estimated to call for more than 5,000 cars.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Advertising and the Church--a Sermon

Forty-three of the leading newspaper advertising men of the country were invited to speak last Sunday in forty-three leading Chicago churches. They were asked to sound the moral keynote of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world, now in session in Chicago with 10,000 delegates in attendance.

John Temple Graves of the Washington Bureau of the AMERICAN, was bidden to speak in the Hilo Park Presbyterian Church. Mr. Graves took for his text Proverbs 22:29, "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before Kings; he shall not stand before mean men." Mr. Graves said:

"A PRESBYTERIAN by faith, tradition and inheritance, I stand with Presbyterian reverence behind the altar of the church.

"I was trained to think that the pulpit was for the forecordained—set apart for those who were dedicated by the laying on of hands to the service of the Lord.

"I recall that once, not twenty years ago, when religion languished in a certain denomination in a section of the country, that its devoted laymen rallied to the rescue, presented themselves to the church authorities and offered alternately to hold prayer services and religious talks in the empty pulpits and deserted churches. But the pastors and the elders, fearing that the unordained and unconsecrated might sow mistaken doctrines in the minds of men, declined the offer and the unfilled churches languished to extinction.

You will understand the feeling with which I stand here today in Chicago—where fifty churches of all denominations in the second city of the republic throw open freely fifty pulpits, not to the ordained of the church, but to fifty men chosen and sent by a strictly business organization to proclaim the new righteousness of trade and the new unity of business and reunion in the world.

"The spectacle cannot fail to bear the messages that there is a new and better spirit in the business world, and that the face of the church is surely set toward the proclaiming of such service and such success for humanity as it has never known.

"It is a remarkable organization to which the churches of Chicago have opened their doors today. The organization of advertising men was born in your Coliseum ten years ago. Only one hundred men straggled into Chicago to attend it.

"For five succeeding years the organization met with slowly increasing members, and from vague purposes to mutual profit and improvement.

"Only five years ago the organization struck the higher note in service and moral standard, and only three years ago the ringing shibboleth of 'truth in advertising' caught and crystallized the character and purpose of an ever-strengthening body of virile business men.

"That appeal caught the hearts of a host of as vital figures as ever moved in trade, and has revolutionized and broadened and bettered the policies of a mighty section of the business world.

"Met in the beginning with discouragement and the charge of idealism—told that the dream of honest advertising could never be realized, and that the mission was beautiful but hopeless—these splendid idealists of advertising persevered.

"They selected from the best and bravest of their association a vigilance committee whose work was planned and prescribed. That vigilance committee went to work like heroes. For three long years they challenged every fraudulent, immoral or lying advertisement that showed its face in newspaper, magazine or poster. They halted every sinner against honest statement and haled to judgment every business hypocrite that sought to deceive the public.

"They were the pioneers of the better day, the men who made that vigilance committee. They were soldiers of conviction; they were heroes of the truth in trade. They have done the State and society a mighty service, and we know it.

"For through them and their imperishable work the World's Association of Advertisers comes to Chicago today to tell the American public, upon the firm basis of statistics, the inspiring fact that ninety per cent. of THE ADVERTISEMENTS WHICH ARE PRINTED IN AMERICA TODAY ARE TRUE AND ACCURATE AND RELIABLE! And that the ten per cent. will yet be won to truth—or it will disappear.

"This resolution deserves to rank with the foremost forward movement of the time. The consumer and the seller of goods and products make up nine-tenths of the human family in our time. The whole tendency of this great reform is to bring this mighty mass together in confidence and mutual interest. TRUTH IN ADVERTISING is bound to build up A REIGN OF CONFIDENCE whose contagious influence will better all the race.

"Under its influence the consumer will learn to trust the advertiser, and under its standards honest advertising will deserve to reap a golden harvest of reward from all classes of those who sell and multiply its clients among all the great bodies who have policies to preach and great truths to disseminate.

"If religion be 'the chief concern of mortals here below,' then religion is already learning to spread its truth and its appeal upon the printed page. If the churches be the evangels of the great gospel of the world's salvation, then the churches must learn as they have learned in Baltimore and Philadelphia and in Chicago to spread the glad tidings on the printed page.

"Time was when the advertising columns were flooded with business announcements as flamboyant and false as the flaming lines that used to herald the advent of the Barnum circus. And behold the accredited messages of truth in advertising which we bring you here today!

"Truth in business must be met and will be met by truth in politics. All hail the splendid newspapers which have done a part of this mighty work! For persistent years they have flashed the searchlights of publicity into the dark places and thundered the ceaseless cannon of denunciation into the ears of thronged iniquity until today no man can deny that TRUTH IN POLITICS HAS BETTER HOPE AND FIRMER PLACE THAN IN THIS QUARTER CENTURY OF OUR LIVES.

"And the church, which always must perish in falsehood or prosper in truth, is writing more and more upon the scroll of these passing years the record of TRUTH IN RELIGION.

"The wars of Europe, bloodied in colossal butcheries, are writing yet upon the hearts of the soldiers of every fighting camp such records of heroic individual courage, of splendid individual sacrifice, of matchless devotion to duty and love of country that must redeem in part the awful carnival of death. While we, thank God, are far from the zone of blood, so must we be better in patriotism, in devotion, in altruism and in heroic faith for the mere reading of the deeds and devotion of our fellows across the sea, not responsible for the leaders that marshal them to murder, but glorifying all history by the matchless individual qualities with which they respond to country and to duty.

"TRUTH IN ADVERTISING IS THE PROPHET OF OPTIMISM AND PROCLAIMS FROM ALL THESE THRILLING LINES THAT THE WORLD IS GROWING BETTER."

How to Keep the Love of the Marriage Partner

The Gray Mare Occasionally Bolts, Now, and Joins Another Master, and It Begins to Look as If the Time Was Near When a Man Will Have to Take as Much Trouble to Hold His Wife as She Does to Hold Him

By Dorothy Dix

ONE of the burning topics of interest to every married woman, and especially to the married woman who is getting unfair and fat, and forty, and whose husband is accumulating enough money to make him attractive to other women, is how to retain a husband's love.

Under such conditions keeping a firm, yet gentle grasp upon a slim, slippery eel is a safe and settled diversion compared to holding a man nailed to his own fireside. Hence most middle-aged ladies spend much time, and thought, and labor, on how to keep their husbands fascinated, and thus circumvent the charmer, and prevent the head of the house from roaming.

Average Man Not Jealous

Men do not bother to try to preserve their wives' affections. Whether this is a compliment and indicates a husband's perfect faith in his wife's love and loyalty, or whether it is an insult and shows that he esteems her so unattractive that he thinks that he can't lose her, no woman knows. And she'd give a good deal to know in her own particular individual case.

It remains, however, a fact that the average middle-aged married man goes through none of the agonies of jealousy about his wife that she does about him. Nor does he diet, or exercise, or use hair tonic to keep himself looking to his wife like the romantic young person she married, while she goes through the tortures of the inquisition in a vain attempt to preserve for him the illusion that she is still the bride he led to the altar.

In spite—or because—men do habitually leave the stable door unlocked, occasionally the gray mare does bolt and goes off with another master. Indeed, this catastrophe is happening with increasing frequency, and it begins to look as if the time might come when a husband would have to take as much trouble to keep his wife as a wife does to keep her husband.

An interesting sidelight is thrown on this view of the subject by a man who is suing a wealthy Lothario for alienation of his wife's affections, and who gives the following ways in which her love was won:

"Spending money while out with her; fine dressing; treating her to elaborate luncheons; giving her expensive presents; taking her to places of amusement; sending her flowers; remembering her birthday; by the lavish tips he gave waiters in cafes; hiring taxis and allowing them to stand by the hour regardless of expense."

Women Like Spenders

Presuming that a woman's love is a purchasable commodity, it is easy to understand how the charms of a good spender could prove irresistible if the lady had the misfortune to be married to a tight-fisted husband. Without being avaricious, it is intoxicatingly flattering to a woman to feel that a man does not think that the best is good enough for her, and that he is willing to throw his money away to give her pleasure. So one is inclined to judge leniently the lady whose errant heart went after the man who used, as her husband avers, "fourteen lavish ways of spending money" to win her love.

But, after all, the moral of the case is not in what the lover did, but what the husband left undone. Few, if any, women ever really sell their love, but many men lose a woman's affection because they are too stingy to keep it. The majority of husbands, however prodigal they may have been in gifts, are apt to think that it's too much trouble to make their wives a present.

Checks Are Unromantic

They justify themselves by saying that Mary or Sallie can buy what she pleases at the shops, and they hold that in paying her bills they are making her a perpetual present. Even on the occasion of Christmas or birthdays, the present only too often takes the form of a check, which satisfies the man's sense of duty, but brings to the woman none of the romantic thrill that she would have had in some little gift that represented some especial whim or fad of hers.

The man's excuse under such circumstances that he didn't know what she wanted adds insult to injury, for it shows how little she is in his thoughts, and what small notice he really takes of her. There was a time when he did know what she liked, and even felt it worth while to keep a memorandum of her preference in chocolate creams and flowers.

To men it may sound farcical to say that a man won a woman's love by the tips he gave to waiters when they went out together, but women will understand the psychological significance of it. They know how often, when their husbands take them out, they do it because they've been held up by the wife's tongue.

Keep Heart in Repair

Nothing is so funereal as a pleasure jaunt forced upon one, and the man who has to take his wife out because she has nagged him into doing it, is in a surly temper that makes him take it out in rowing with the street car conductor, abusing the play they go to see and badgering the waiter at the restaurant.

Not so acts the man whose pleasure in being with a woman makes him smile upon the world, regard the street car conductor as a lost-lost brother, every play as a masterpiece, and the waiter as a godling who serves nectar and ambrosia, and who deserves to have gold and silver offered up before him.

There's a lesson for men in the man who won a wife's love away from her husband by fourteen lavish ways of spending money. It's good economy to keep things in repair, even a wife's heart, and ward off divorce expenses by a few judicious investments of small change in candy and violets.
